

Instructor of Biology
Lander University

The Department of Biology at Lander University, a public comprehensive university in the Upstate region of South Carolina, comprises a cohesive and forward-thinking faculty who deliver an outcomes-based curriculum that has been carefully aligned with the goals of the AAAS Vision and Change initiative. This modern approach involves not only our major programs but also courses for non-majors as well.

Our department is poised to fill a full-time, non-tenure-track position with responsibilities in the laboratory setting to begin January 2025. The ideal candidate will share our passion for student-centered learning and innovative teaching practices that are outcomes based.

Teaching responsibilities will be labs in introductory biology, and general biology. Salary determined by experience.

The contract period is nine months.

Normal teaching load is 15 contact hours each semester.

Minimum qualifications: Applicants must have at least a bachelor's degree in the biological sciences and demonstrable aptitude for teaching biology at the college level. Excellent oral and written communication skills are necessary. Application letters should explicitly address the qualifications and desired aptitudes outlined above.

Send application letter; curriculum vitae; statement of teaching philosophy; copies of undergraduate and graduate transcripts; and the names, addresses, e-mail addresses, and phone numbers of three references in Word or PDF format to:

Dr. Jennifer Yates, Dean,
College of Science and Mathematics

Email electronic applications to jyates1@lander.edu are required.

Review of applications will begin September 15th and continue until the position is filled.
